Mayor Mayer Honors First Responders at Chews Landing Fire Department Ceremony

On Saturday, February 1, Mayor David R. Mayer joined first responders and community members at the Chews Landing Fire Department to recognize the heroic efforts of those who saved a woman and her two dogs from the frozen Timber Creek.

The ceremony brought together emergency personnel from various departments who played a critical role in the January 25th rescue. Their swift response and coordination ensured a successful outcome, preventing what could have been a tragic incident. Mayor Mayer presented official resolutions honoring these first responders, acknowledging their bravery, dedication, and commitment to protecting the residents of Gloucester Township.

The event also provided an opportunity for the rescued woman to meet and personally thank the team that saved her. It was a heartfelt reunion, reinforcing the strong bond between our first responders and the community they serve.

Gloucester Township extends its deepest appreciation to all involved in this life-saving mission. Their dedication exemplifies the very best of public service, and we are proud to honor their heroism.

Mayor Meets with local Eagle Scouts, Praises Community Contributions

Mayor Mayer recently met with three accomplished Eagle Scouts, Adam Bacon, William Ahrens, and Brett Bellows, to discuss their impressive community projects and recognize their dedication to service. The meeting highlighted the positive impact these young men have already made and underscored the bright future they represent.

Adam Bacon, a Rowan University student studying Computing and Informatics, shared details of his recent project: the construction of a fire pit at the Old Pine Farm in Deptford. Adam, who has been an Eagle Scout since the 3rd grade, demonstrated a commitment to creating community spaces and enhancing recreational opportunities.

William Ahrens, currently pursuing Liberal Arts at Camden County College, described his impactful project of painting 500 markers in Glendora and Catalina Hills. William has been an Eagle Scout since the 2nd grade and his work showcases a dedication to preserving and improving local trails and landmarks.

Brett Bellows, also a Rowan University student studying Finance, discussed his recent endeavor of creating the entrance and hiking trail at Old Pine Farm in Deptford. Having achieved Eagle Scout status in the 1st grade, Brett's long-standing commitment to scouting and his recent project highlight his passion for outdoor spaces and community access.

Mayor Mayer expressed his sincere pride in these exceptional young men, emphasizing their role as future leaders. "I am so proud to have fine young men and women like you as the future leaders in our communities," the Mayor stated.

The Mayor stressed the importance of giving back to the community and commended the Eagle Scouts for their dedication to service. He added, "Wherever you are going to wind up at - you are going to do great!" The meeting served as an inspiring example of the positive impact young people can have on their communities and the bright future that lies ahead for these dedicated Eagle Scouts.

EAGLES TAKE ON SUPER BOWL LIX

Gloucester Township encourages everyone to celebrate Super Bowl Sunday responsibly. Whether you're heading out to watch the game at a local establishment or gathering with friends, it's important to have a plan in place. Arrange a safe, sober ride home before drinking alcohol or smoking, and never let someone get behind the wheel if they are impaired. If you're hosting, be sure your guests have a responsible way to get home. Always wear your seat belt, as it is the best defense against impaired drivers. If you see an intoxicated driver on the road, call 911. Let's all enjoy the game while making safety a priority.
